WHY IS WILDLIFE PROTECTED OR REGULATED?

In 1980, only forty-two years ago, Belize had an estimated 144,000 people. Today, in 2022, Belize supports an estimated 400,000 people - more than double the number in the same area. During that time, the area of forest outside protected areas has decreased, reducing the availability of game species. Hunting is a way of life for some people. It supports families and is culturally important for communities. Belize's forests, however, can't support the increasing number of people and their demand for game meat. Without better regulation and enforcement, Belize will lose its game species, and future generations will only be able to see these animals and birds in the zoo. The law is designed to help us keep these species in the fire hearth and on the table, whilst still having sufficient in the wild to provide resources for many years to come.

The white lipped peccary (warrie) once roamed across Belize, living in large herds of 100 or more in connected forests. Today, it has disappeared from most forests outside protected areas, and even from some protected areas, such as the Manatee Forest Reserve. Where it does still exist, group size is now as small as 5 or 6 animals. It is slowly being wiped out, and will disappear completely if hunting is not effectively regulated.

WHAT DO WE MEAN BY "GAME SPECIES"?

Game species are those animals (mammals, birds and reptiles) that can be hunted for meat in Belize. Peccary, deer, paca, and curassow are all examples of game species. To hunt these species, hunters have to have both a valid gun license and a valid hunting license. Hunting without these licenses and in areas where animals are protected is against the law.

GAME SPECIES

WHAT DO WE MEAN BY THREATENED SPECIES?

A Threatened Species is one that is declining - the number of individuals is going down.

This may be because of disease or the changing climate...but more frequently, it is because of us. Unsustainable hunting and land use change reduce numbers until the populations are so low, they find it hard to recover. These species may then become extinct.

The International Union for the Conservation of Nature (IUCN) has developed a list - the IUCN Red List - with a series of global categories that indicate which species are at most risk of extinction.

EXTINCT

There are no more living examples of these species left on Earth - our children will never be able to see these in the wild - EVER.

CRITICALLY ENDANGERED

These species will become extinct in the near future unless we work harder to protect them.

ENDANGERED

These species are declining fast, and are at risk of becoming critically endangered in the near future unless we work hard to protect them.

VULNERABLE

These species are declining but not yet endangered. However they will continue to decline unless we work to protect them.

ANIMAL CRUELTY

What is Animal Cruelty?

Animal cruelty ranges from physical violence; where humans purposefully cause harm, injure, or kill an animal; to neglect such as depriving an animal of water, shelter, food, and necessary medical treatment. Cruelty can be intentional, such as kicking, burning, stabbing, beating or shooting an animal. But cruelty can also be caused by lack of knowledge of proper diet and care for an animal. Animal fighting, in which animals are trained or forced to attack each other in violent confrontations, is another form of animal cruelty.

Belize's Cruelty to Animals Act, Chapter 115 of the Sustantive Laws of Belize Revised Edition, 2011.

Referred to as "The Cruelty to Animals Act", this act serves to regulate cruelty to animals in Belize. While further revisions are necessary we want to share some of the important points.

- Paragraph 3. Keeping a place for baiting or fighting animals is prohibited under this act. Permitting baiting or fighting, or charging admission to any place for the purpose of baiting or fighting animals is also prohibited.
- Paragraph 4.(1) Any animal that is kept confined in any area must be provided with fit and wholesome food and water.

- Paragraph 5.(1) If more than 12 hours passes without proper food and/or water, any person can enter where the animal is confined and provide food and water, without it being deemed trespassing and the owner shall compensate for the food and water.
- Paragraph 6. Any person who beats, ill treats, over-loads or tortures any animal is committing an offence. Procuring ill treatment, abuse and torture is also considered an offence.
- Paragraph 7. Ill-treatment is further defined to include: urging an animal to cross water sources where being attacked by another species is possible, hoisting or raising horned animals by the horns or twisting tails or any act likely to cause torture, hoisting or raising any animal by a noose or rope.
- Paragraph 8. Any constable, upon view of complaint by a person who declares their name and home, may arrest any person offending against this Act and without any other authority or warrant convey such offender before a magistrate.

Fines are currently very small with a range from $10/day for neglecting to provide proper food and water and fines not exceeding $100 for the other offenses.

Why is reporting Animal Cruelty important? It protects humans as well!

There have been various studies carried out by multiple governmental criminal enforcement agencies on the link between violent crimes against humans and animal abuse in the past of the perpetrator. This well documented "Link" can even begin from a child witnessing animal abuse, which can then escalate to the child committing acts of abuse to animals themselves. FBI states: "...recent research shows a well-documented link that animal abuse is a predictive or co-occurring crime with violence against humans (including intimate partners, children, and elders) and is associated with other types of violent offenses." The FBI have therefore began to track animal abuse cases. According to Johnson (2018) "The mistreatment and abuse of animals is a significant indicator of violence towards humans, up to and including intimate partner abuse, sexual assault, rape, murder. All too often mental health professionals and prosecutors miss the seriousness of any cruelty towards animals and the significant role animal cruelty plays. The literature supports that animal cruelty is one of the earliest markers for future acts of both violent and nonviolent criminal behaviors." https://alliance-health-wildlife.

Cruelty or gate an animal from abuse, or charging a person for cruelty to animals may save a human's life!

EXAMPLES OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

- Stoning of any living animal, including birds, reptiles and amphibians
- Tying limbs or chopping limbs and abandoning any live animal
- Drowning or setting fire to any living animal
- Tying an animal on a short leash with no accessibility to water/ food/shelter.
- Neglecting to feed an animal its proper nutritional diet
